The shape of the day

Begin at Old Town Square, choose a small loop through the centre, pause for lunch and finish with the Vltava and Charles Bridge. Leave paid interiors optional so the first day stays flexible.

Pace and effort

Allow about 5-7 hours including breaks, with roughly 3-5 km outdoors depending on detours. These are editorial estimates, excluding hotel journeys. Crowds and photography stops can slow the route.

Short version: Old Town Square, lunch and a riverside stroll. Save the bridge crossing for Day 2 if you prefer.

River first

From the Rudolfinum side, take a short riverside stroll towards Charles Bridge. Stop where there is space, then cross at a comfortable pace. Watch your belongings in crowded spots.

Decide when to finish

At the Mala Strana end, turn back to your accommodation or pause near Kampa. Day 2 returns to this side of the river, so there is no need to explore every lane today.

An example, not a price promise.

Illustrative couple / three nights

Accommodation: $3 \times 2,800 = 8,400$ CZK.

Meals and drinks: $2 \text{ people} \times 3 \text{ days} \times 900 = 5,400$ CZK.

Two 72-hour app tickets: $2 \times 340 = 680$ CZK.

Two Castle main-circuit admissions: $2 \times 450 = 900$ CZK.

Two basic Old Town Hall admissions: $2 \times 350 = 700$ CZK.

The arithmetic

Subtotal: 16,080 CZK.

Illustrative 10% reserve: 1,608 CZK.

Total: 17,688 CZK for two people.

This excludes travel to Prague, insurance, shopping and other paid attractions. Add arrival/departure meals and extra transport if needed.

What is researched and what is assumed

Transport and admission figures are dated published adult prices. Accommodation and food figures are invented planning assumptions, not quotes or average prices. Replace them with your actual choices. Check whether your ticket validity covers both airport journeys.

Keep currency conversion explicit

For illustration only, at 25 CZK per EUR 1: $17,688 / 25 = \text{EUR } 707.52$. This is not a current exchange-rate quote. Use your actual conversion rate and include relevant fees.
